

CASUALTY LISTS
MAY BE HELD UP

Secretary Baker's Order
May Leave All Lists for Pershing to Report.

Washington, D. C., April 2.—Major Gen. Peyton C. March, acting chief of staff, today directed that issue of the daily casualty lists here be suspended pending definite interpretation from Secretary Baker as to whether it is forbidden by his new order providing that Gen. Pershing's headquarters shall issue all news relating to the troops in France. The war department does not believe the order is intended to preclude issuing these lists in Washington and expects to resume them as soon as Secretary Baker confirms this understanding of his order.

Officials here see no reason why publication of casualties through the war department should not be continued as formerly. If the lists are to be given out abroad and carried over by news agencies, there will be great duplication and an added burden on the already overworked wire facilities.

May Be Long Coming.

It was pointed out that casualty lists from the forces now being amalgamated with the French and British armies at the battle front necessarily will be slow in arriving. It may be weeks before the names are available as the lists will have to filter back and forth through British and French communication channels to American headquarters. For that reason it is obvious, officials say, that publication could disclose nothing of military value to the enemy.

Pershing's Own Lists Available.

Lists from Gen. Pershing's own army will be available as quickly as heretofore, since only American communication lines are involved in the transmission.

The war department had not received today any amplification of Secretary Baker's terse direction that hereafter all information regarding American forces in France be given out through American headquarters there.

WAR REDUCES
IMMIGRATION

Few Come From Europe
Now While Great Number
Go Back to Fight.

Washington, D. C., April 2.—While war has stemmed the tide of immigration, it has not entirely stopped it. And, as the flow of immigrants from Europe has been cut down to comparatively nothing, it has increased at the Canadian, Mexican and Pacific stations.

For a decade before the war the annual influx approximated a million a year. From July to December last year the number fell to 38,222. Moreover, the decreasing stream of newcomers is being offset to a remarkable degree by the exodus from America of those desiring to return to their native lands. In fact the departures outnumbered the admissions in November and December.

A great many of those leaving the country since the beginning of the war have been killed overseas who have gone back to answer the call to the colors.

May Be Years Resuming.

Although the tide of immigration dropped from a million to 38,000 the first year of the war and has since steadily been on the decline, there is reason to believe that it will resume its pre-war proportions for a decade or more after the treaty of peace.

The ravages of war have made it an absolute necessity for the belligerents to retain within their own borders all useful man power—not alone for active fighting or imperative noncombatant tasks, but also for the great work of rehabilitation that must start when hostilities cease.

Even the neutrals—Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Holland—are discharging obligations, recognizing that the loss of even small portions of their populations may prove a material after-war economic loss.

MEDICAL OFFICER REPORTS.

First Lieut. William K. O'Brien, medical reserve corps, tuberculosis specialist, reported at 15th division headquarters Wednesday for duty at Fort Bliss.

He was followed by a number of other officers, including a number of medical reserve corps specialists.

At the close of the program a vote of thanks and cheers were given to Miss Mae Loeffer, who was the accompanist for the evening. The entertainment closed by all singing the national air, "America."

In honor of the return of Mrs. Donna Kluge, supervisor of the war camp community service board of the Khaki club, a special program will be given tonight in the dining hall at 8 o'clock sharp, under the direction of Miss Mae Loeffer.

The splendid performance of the children's cabaret that was given at the opening of the club house will be repeated, by request, Mrs. Kluge has just recovered from an operation for appendicitis, and the soldiers and her friends will welcome her back this evening. Following is the program:

Song, Sammie Joseph.
Reading, Barbara Goelke.
Dance, Elizabeth Swan.
Violin, Eva Brooks.
Song, Keva Rogers.
Song, Justine Sagal.
Dance, Blanche Corawall.
Song, Fred Stevenson.
Song, Mildred Lockett.
Violin, Elizabeth Hunt.
Dance, Florence Stevenson.
Song, Emma Holcombe.
Dance, Clara Holcombe.

TWO MORE OFFICERS HERE TO HELP FORM 314TH CAVALRY

While no man for the 314th cavalry, yet to be organized here, have reported yet, the officers for the regiment are beginning to arrive. Maj. W. H. H. reported Tuesday afternoon, as did also Capt. Wm. C. Meyer, formerly of Camp Dodge, Iowa, for duty with the new cavalry organization. Men for this regiment will probably be secured first from the cavalry regiments now organized, and the strength of the regiment made up of drafted men from the several caniments in the west.

Dr. Caldwell's
SYRUP PEPESIN
The Perfect Laxative

FREE SAMPLES—Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in America. If you have never used it, send your address for a free trial bottle to Dr. Caldwell, 408 Washington St., Minneapolis, Minn. If you have used it, send for a copy of the Case of the Baby.

SEEDS—SEEDS
EL PASO SEED CO., Inc.

"Just East of New Court House." "Phone 363."

523 East San Antonio St. El Paso, Texas

Our New Fall and Spring Catalogue is free and tells what and when to plant.

Everything that is best in FARM, GARDEN and FLOWER SEEDS.

We also carry a nice line of hardware.

Rocky Incubators and Brooders.

NOTICE!

To Our Good Customers and Friends:

We are going to ask your forbearance until we get our new location. We had anticipated running our fish business in connection with the new confectionery store at the corner of Mills and Stanton streets, but find that the two businesses will not work together, and therefore for the next week or two will be unable to supply our good customers and friends with the usual supply of fine quality fish and oysters which has made our place liked and famous.

REMEMBER US, AND THE NAME. WE WILL HAVE A NEW LOCATION SOON.

WE WILL TELL YOU THROUGH THE PAPERS AT THE EARLIEST POSSIBLE DATE.

BLUE POINT FISH & OYSTER HOUSE

Khaki Club's
Dance Draws
Merry Crowd

Troop A, Fifth Cavalry,
Entertains; Officers Come Out As Guests.

Over a hundred troopers and their feminine friends attended the first organization ball to be held at the Khaki club, Oregon and Boulevard streets, Tuesday night. Men of Troop H of the Fifth Cavalry, were the hosts of the evening, which was enjoyed for the splendid crowd which turned out, as well as for the excellent floor and music.

Sergeant John W. Pennington was in charge of the floor, and made the address of welcome. Col. E. A. Anderson, commanding the Fifth Cavalry, was present, and Capt. P. L. Lafferty, commanding troop H, and Capt. R. F. Murray, E. F. Jennings and F. E. Koester, attended.

Decorations Are Impressive.

The decorations were a feature. The troop's flag was draped at the entrance of the dance, and the walls were literally invisible through the festoons of American flags, which were hung there by dozens. Punch was served. The music by the Fifth Cavalry orchestra, under the direction of Sergeant H. F. Hark, would have made any hall a swelter.

Mrs. Donna Kluge, chairman of the war camp community service board, who was formally opened on Sunday, gave her first personal appearance at the program, which will be given at the club rooms tonight. On Thursday the club rooms tonight, the program will be given at the club rooms tonight, the program will be given at the club rooms tonight.

Program at New "Y."

The first entertainment in the new Y. M. C. A. building at Fort Bliss, which was formally opened on Sunday, was given last evening, under the direction of Matthew Lennen, the building being filled to capacity. A fine program was rendered. A violin solo, "Caprice," by Hiera, was given by Miss Clara Kluge, who responded with "Pizzicato," by Delibes, for an encore. A recitation, "An Old Malaga Rap," was given by Mrs. G. G. Garrett. Keep the audience convinced with a 15th Cavalry, which was followed by dancing.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

TROOPERS ENTERTAIN AT
FORT WITH FIELD PROGRAM

Saloniki Country Is Favorable to the Bulgarians in the Fighting.

(Continued From Page 1)
being stationed several hundred feet away from the infantry line. Two days after the British and French had taken foothold on the edge of the plateau, the Bulgarians had enough artillery in place to undertake the reduction of the allied position. That was especially the case on the Golash mountain held by the British, as I was able to observe by going over the ground after the battle.

Bulgar Artillery Fire Hot.

The artillery fire of the Bulgarians was severe. The losses of the British infantry, due to shells and splintered rock, were appalling. But Tommy Atkins held on for dear life.

Meanwhile, the French regiments on the hills south of Kosturino were being shelled. In these hills the chances for digging in were a little better, but nothing to boast of. I found that the French had been able to finish their trenches on the slopes, but on the crests the men had been exposed to the full fury of the Bulgarian artillery fire.

For two days the bombardment went on. The British commander, who was in the second day the Bulgarians brought a regiment from Philippopolis to a high covered clearing on the Golash mountain, and at about 2 o'clock in the morning the attack on the British position began.

British Make Stiff Fight.

It must have been clear to the British that their position was untenable. They held their position. But they decided to put up a stiff fight for it. The machine gun fire that greeted the advancing Bulgarians was one of the worst recorded. Lack of time and the rocky ground rendered it impossible for the British to lay out barbed wire entanglements on the steep slopes of the position.

The British, however, had been loosed over every foot of ground and proved a terrible obstacle to the Bulgarians. One attacking line after another was cut down by the British, and when daylight came the frontal attack had been repulsed.

All would have been well had not a part of the Philippopolis regiment and some Macedonians succeeded in scaling a precipice to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the Bulgarians to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

Before the British knew what had happened, the British had been driven back to the left of the British position. The British commander must have thought it impossible for the British to get up that steep mountain wall, overlooking the fact that he was in a mountainous position.

HENRY FORD WITH
'JITNE' TANKS

Henry Ford Declares the United States Can Win
By Use of Tool Power.

By HENRY FORD.
Detroit, Mich., April 2.—We Americans can win the war—but only if we throw the whole weight of our industries and tool power into the balance. This war is the greatest engineering feat the world has ever known. The side that masters the best machinery will win. We do not yet realize that our problem centers in the management of factories and the fullest use of machinery; nor have we organized to concentrate our industrial resources upon essential war work.

Russia lost 2,000,000 men and her power collapsed.

A small tank can be made for attack that will carry two men and a machine gun with armor protection enough to resist the hail of machine gun bullets and shrapnel splinters. Such tanks, if standardized at the rate of one or two thousand a day, once production was started, would be made in three months.

Distributed equally along the west front this would place one tank every 15 feet in each tank two men and a machine gun, would have the offensive power of 50 soldiers with rifles.

That advantage would come from possession of the better place of fighting machine. Soldiers would stand in line to have a chance to attack in such outfits.

TROOPERS ENTERTAIN AT
FORT WITH FIELD PROGRAM

Hundreds of El Paso people attended a military athletic tournament and musical program given at Fort Bliss Wednesday by courtesy of Gen. Robert L. Howe, second brigade, 15th Cavalry division. The athletic and musical events were given by the cavalrymen of the Fifth and Seventh cavalry. Prizes have been offered for the winners and competition among troops of the brigade was keen.

Tonight's musical singing will be a feature, led by A. G. Kohn, of the army Y. M. C. A. About 3000 soldiers will sing.

Gen. Howe, since his arrival here last month, has taken hold of the athletic and singing movement in the army with enthusiasm. He has said that every help of this sort for the fighting men will be of great benefit to him in the struggle overseas.

RUSSIAN JOINS CANADIAN ARMY HERE; U. S. GETS FIVE

Sam Shapiro, a native of Russia, who said he was deported from that country several years ago because of his political views, has become a resident of Toronto, Canada, was accepted for enlistment in the Canadian army at the local United States army recruiting station Tuesday afternoon. John A. Jones, of Woodward, Okla., was enlisted for the 122d field artillery of the United States army at the local recruiting station.

Robert A. Hanson was accepted for the cooks and bakers, regular army, and the following were taken for the national army: Franklin G. Bickel, 2808 Grant avenue, El Paso, 29th repair shop, Fort Bliss; Charles H. Kleiman, Albuquerque, N. M., 24th engineers, and George Dawson, Kenney, Scotland, ordnance corps.

PLANS READY FOR BIDS ON CITY'S NEW REPAIR SHOP

Plans for the construction of a city auto repair shop have been completed by building inspector Percy McChes, Jr., who is ready to bid on the work. The shop will be located at Lee street and Magoffin avenue, and will cover an area 40 by 40 feet. Work on the building will be started as soon as satisfactory bids are obtained. Approximately $2000 will be spent in the construction.

The shop will be used for the maintenance and repair of all city motor vehicles, which number over 20. At present the work is done by the city in a small shop at the Sunset Heights fire station, which, it is said, is not large enough to take care of the volume of work that is required. The new shop will purchase tires and supplies by wholesale, and will be operated along the same lines as a commercial garage.

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

LOCAL attacks on several parts of the battle front in northern France yesterday and last night kept both sides fairly busy in the outpost areas, while back of the lines the preparations went on for the renewal of the engagement on a vast scale to which the logic of the situation points.

Fortified by the news that the powerful allied reserve is as yet virtually uncommitted by apparent evidences of feintish nervousness as the crisis approaches, contented opinion views the outlook hopefully.

Their great attack stemmed and their countless efforts to find a weak point in the allied line repulsed with heavy losses, the German leaders probably are preparing for another plan to force a breakthrough. Where the next strike will come is uncertain, but the Albert-Montdidier section of the battle line may be selected unless the Germans are convinced that it is impossible to look for victory on either side of the Somme, and may attempt to break through at some other point on the line, where until now, it has been comparatively quiet.

Preparing For New Effort.

The cessation of the German onslaughts is welcomed by the British and French, who are busy preparing for their next great effort after their victorious defense against the stupendous enemy drive. Both armies are confident that the German efforts to separate the British and French will continue to prove fruitless.

There is much significance in the announcement that the allied reserve army is still intact. This is the army of maneuver, of which Gen. Foch had immediate command and which was thought might be used in a counter-offensive. Meanwhile more than 180,000 American soldiers, eager for the fray, are marching forward to the front line.

Tuesday the Germans made no attacks either north or south of the Somme. Near Serre, north of Albert, the British attacked, and a small operation and captured an enemy post. In the south, the artillery bombardment was heavy between Montdidier and Noyon, while further east German detachments were driven back from the Oise.

Small attacks have been reported from the front line in the Wever and in upper Alsace. In Flanders there has been only the usual artillery activity. German guns have been bombarding the American sector northwest of Toul heavily. Inclement weather is hindering operations on the Italian front and the artillery activity is slight.

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

LOCAL attacks on several parts of the battle front in northern France yesterday and last night kept both sides fairly busy in the outpost areas, while back of the lines the preparations went on for the renewal of the engagement on a vast scale to which the logic of the situation points.

Fortified by the news that the powerful allied reserve is as yet virtually uncommitted by apparent evidences of feintish nervousness as the crisis approaches, contented opinion views the outlook hopefully.

Their great attack stemmed and their countless efforts to find a weak point in the allied line repulsed with heavy losses, the German leaders probably are preparing for another plan to force a breakthrough. Where the next strike will come is uncertain, but the Albert-Montdidier section of the battle line may be selected unless the Germans are convinced that it is impossible to look for victory on either side of the Somme, and may attempt to break through at some other point on the line, where until now, it has been comparatively quiet.

Preparing For New Effort.

The cessation of the German onslaughts is welcomed by the British and French, who are busy preparing for their next great effort after their victorious defense against the stupendous enemy drive. Both armies are confident that the German efforts to separate the British and French will continue to prove fruitless.

There is much significance in the announcement that the allied reserve army is still intact. This is the army of maneuver, of which Gen. Foch had immediate command and which was thought might be used in a counter-offensive. Meanwhile more than 180,000 American soldiers, eager for the fray, are marching forward to the front line.

Tuesday the Germans made no attacks either north or south of the Somme. Near Serre, north of Albert, the British attacked, and a small operation and captured an enemy post. In the south, the artillery bombardment was heavy between Montdidier and Noyon, while further east German detachments were driven back from the Oise.

EL PASO'S NEWEST
DEPARTMENT STORE
THE GLOBE
COR. OVERLAND & SAN JACINTO STS.

After Easter Sale of Stylish Millinery
At $3.95

We want to make a clean sweep of a limited number of the season's best Styles in Millinery.

These are Street and Dress Hats that sold formerly at $6.00 and $8.00. They will be on sale tomorrow at $3.95

After Easter Sale of Silk Dresses

The two special lots of Silk Dresses we are offering this week at After Easter Reductions certainly merits your attention. There is a wide range of choice in the two lots and further emphasizes Globe values.

Lot No. 1—Taffeta and Georgette Silk Dresses, in values